

PRIVACY AND SECURITY STATEMENT

CDLC respects your right to privacy and will protect it when you visit our web site. Here are some things you should know about how we protect your privacy.

E-mail

1. When you send us e-mail we won't keep or share your e-mail address with anyone outside of CDLC staff. We'll only use your e-mail address to respond to your requests for information.
2. If you sign up for a CDLC (e-)mailing list, we'll only send you the kinds of information you've requested. We won't maintain your name on the list and won't share your e-mail address with anyone outside of CDLC.

Information Collection

1. When you visit our web site we collect certain information about your visit that does not identify you personally. We can tell the type of computer, browser, and web service you are using. We also know the date and time you visit and the pages you visit. Collecting this information helps us design the site to meet your needs.
2. Sometimes we use "cookies," which are small amounts of text stored on your computer. We only use "session cookies" in some places where people can transact business. That means we only store the cookie on your computer during that visit. So, if you are entering information for a business transaction, you won't lose the information if you go to another site and come back during the visit. After you turn off your computer or stop using the internet, the cookie is erased. If you don't want us to put a "cookie" on your computer, you can disable them in your browser. You will still be able to use the entire web site.

Site Security

1. We monitor visits to the web site to identify any attempt to tamper with it.
2. When you submit personal information using our web site--for example, if you were to sign up for a conference online--we have systems that make sure people outside of CDLC cannot access your personal information.
3. We would only try to identify you personally when required to do so by a law enforcement investigation. Any information we collect for those investigations is destroyed according to federal guidelines.

4. Tampering with CDLC's web site is against the law. If anyone tries to tamper with it, they may be punished under the Computer Fraud and Abuse Act of 1986 and the National Information Infrastructure Protection Act.

1. Our website has links to many other web sites. When you go to another site, you are subject to the privacy and security policies of that site. CDLC cannot attest to the accuracy of information provided there.
2. Linking to a web site does not constitute an endorsement by CDLC, or any of its employees, of the sponsors of the site or the products presented on the site. If you have any questions, please contact us.
